Residents may have noticed large, blue dumpsters which have recently made an appearance in the Family and Graduate Student Housing neighborhoods. These blue bins are part of a new recycling program and OSU’s efforts to promote sustainability.

“It started with a conversation I had with Dr. Brown in the summer of 2012 where we discussed the fact students really want to recycle but did not have any place to take it,” said Ilda Hershey, OSU sustainability coordinator.

According to the Oklahoma Recycling Association, every person generates approximately 4.4 pounds of waste per day. The ORA also said 40 percent of municipal garbage consists of kitchen and garden wastes.

“The recycling program will divert the amount of waste going to landfill and it will give these products new life as they go to be processed into new materials again,” Hershey said. “It will make it easier for students so they don’t have to transport the materials off campus.”

It was decided if students had a convenient place to drop off recyclables, they would participate in a recycling program, Hershey said.

She said she would like students to consider the effort needed to extract materials from the environment and how it impacts the environment and human health when deciding to recycle.

According to the Environmental Protection Agency, recycling creates jobs as well as reducing waste, conserving resources, preventing pollution and saving energy.

The FGSH recycling program complements other initiatives and programs OSU has implemented over the years.

Since January 2013, about 70 percent of OSU’s electricity comes from wind power, Hershey said. University Dining Services has its Made In Oklahoma and Farm Fresh programs as well as providing farmers with food scraps for composting.

OSU Parking and Transit Services has the OrangeRide bike rental program and the buses are fueled by compressed natural gas, she added. OSU also is a Tree Campus USA school meaning dead trees are replaced with native trees. OSU landscapers also participate by composting landscape waste and using drip irrigation and integrated pest management.

“We also have an aggressive energy conservation program that has saved $28 million since 2007,” Hershey said.

The FGSH recycling program is a pilot program, Hershey said. They are interested in feedback so they can learn from the FGSH recycling experience before rolling the program out to single student housing.

“Recycling is not the best way to manage waste,” Hershey said. “Reducing and reusing is the best way to manage waste.”

Reusing materials already on the market saves resources and reduces pollution, Hershey said.

“The most important thing is don’t put trash into the blue bins,” Hershey said. Trash in the bins leads to the contamination of recyclables.

Recycling Facts

- Each person generates an average of 4.4 pounds of waste per day.
- In 1994, 24 percent, or around 49 million tons of municipal solid waste was recovered through recycling and composting.
- Carbon dioxide emissions would be reduced by 850 pounds per year if you recycled all your home’s waste newsprint, cardboard, glass and metal.
- Recycling one aluminum can saves enough energy to run a TV for three hours.
- An estimated 150 million computers will be thrown away in the U.S. alone. This is enough to fill a one-acre hole that is 3.5 miles deep.

Please only recycle clean, dry paper–junk mail, newspapers, magazines, phone books, flattened cardboard, plastic containers marked No. 1-5 and rinsed aluminum cans. Please do not place trash or glass in the containers.
Greetings! November is the month of the American Thanksgiving holiday. Thanksgiving is also the first holiday of a busy holiday season in the United States and around the world. Let me be the first to wish everyone a Happy Thanksgiving! I hope you have a wonderful holiday! We have planned (free!) Thanksgiving dinners for each neighborhood in the coming weeks; please check page eight of this newsletter for the date/time of your neighborhood’s dinner. You may also check your neighborhood newsletters and/or contact your Apartment Assistant for more information about this annual FGSH tradition. Please let your AA know if you can help with the festivities for your neighborhood dinner. If you are leaving for Thanksgiving Break, remember to adjust your thermostat to 68 degrees in order to help save energy. Also, if you are graduating next month and planning to vacate your apartment permanently, be sure to give written notice that you are vacating at the Housing Office in Iba Hall. I hope all is well in your endeavors as we approach the end of the semester. Please continue to let us know your feelings about any of our programs or services, especially if you wish to share an idea or opinion. Contact the FGSH office, your AA or the FRC with your comments, concerns or ideas. The information you provide us is always used to help us maintain quality service to you and/or to make adjustments or improvements to the FGSH community as needed.
